A Fish Tale.

(For the Dispatch.) The air is balmy, soft, and warm,
The shad-files now begin to swarm,
The dogwood-trees in blossoms bright,
Proclaim that silver perch will bits.
All living nature, with glad voice.
At spring's return doth now rejoice—
The hens scratch for the worms, and carkle.

The fisherman gets out his tackle. There surely is some fascination, Or call it an infatuation, Which makes some men so very fond Of fishing in a stream or pond, Spoiling their clothes, losing their din-Returning home with a few minnows, And a propensity to stretch
The truth about the fish they catch.
And then the lies that they do say
Bout the big one that got away
Are such that their most truthful tale is Taken always "cum grano salis."

But of all who ever went daft
On what is called "the gentle craft,"
Who fish for pleasure, not for profit,
Pernaps the fondest lover of it
Was a gentleman who did dwell
In Manchester, as I've heard tell.
(Old Manchester, that famous city
For fishermen and girls so pretty.)
He fishing loved beyond all reason,
Went fishing in and out of season,
It took possession of his mind,
Water to him appeared designed
For fishing, more than navigation,
Drinking, bathing, purification.
If he had gone to Beaufont Spring,
Whose waters health and pleasure bring.
He would not have been there a minute
Before his line would have been in it.
In travelling this mortal round,
Some joys and pleasures yet are found;
Take any joy and make it thribble,
His joy was greater at a nibble.
Nor words could picture his delight.
When he "saw his cork out of sight."
Indeed, he was a greater lover
Of fishing than that staupch old Grover. But of all who ever went daft Indeed, he was a greater lover Of fishing than that staunch old Grover, Who, when he did not want to go Hunting for ducks at Quantico, Was fishing away, day by day, In the waters of Buzzard's Bay.

In the waters of Buzzard's Hay.

Now, habits in themselves not vicious, By excess may become pernicious, And just as might have been expected, As he his business neglected. (Although a man accounted clever Before he took this fishing-fever). It did not take so very long Before affairs with him went wrong; Troubles and debts came on apace, And ruin stared him in the face. Yet, strange to say, as he grew poor He only fished the more and more. His good wife, who the burden bore To keep the wolf 'way from the door, Who loved him and did not upbraid, But strove in ev'ry way to aid, (What will not woman's heart so pure For worthless man she loves endure!) Would wait all day with dear concern, Until the husband's safe return. The little children on the watch, Anxious to see their daddy's catch, Poor little things, I've heard it said, They oft went supperless to bed.

Since Horace wrote "Qui Fit Maecenas,"
I find human nature has been as Described by him—each one's ambition
Heing to alter his condition.
If our fisher had been content
To take things just as they were sent,
And if he had confined his wishes
To catching ordinary fishes—
Perch, cels, catth, carp, muliets, pike,
Flathacks, rouches, chub, and the like—
He would not have met his sad fate,
Nor I this story would relate.
But in an evil hour, alas!
He set his heart on catching bass;
And then he thought that life was naught, Since Horace wrote "Qui Fit Maecenas," naught,

Uniess a big black bass he caught.
But though he ev'ry hole did seek.
From Mayo's bridge to Powhite creek;
And though he fished early and late,
And tempted them with nicest bait
From morn to night, they would not bite
At crawfish, minnows, hellgramite.

One night he came not-at the gate His loving wife for him did wait-Ah, loving wife, you wait in vain, You'll ne'er see him alive again!

They found him on his fav'rite rock. Dead, stone dead, he died of the shock; For firmly held in his death grip. His pole touched water at the tip, Swayed to and fro and bent and shock—A five-pound bass was on his hook.

This tale was told to me for true, Who got the bass I never knew. BENJAMIN B. WEISIGER. Manchester, Va., April 14, 1897.

NO QUORUM AND NO ELECTION. Deboe Knifed in Kentucky Senatorial Contest-Great Excitement. FRANKFORT, KY., April 24.- The biggest crowd of the extra session assembled in the House of Representatives shortly before noon to-day, the hour for the joint session, at which it was expected that the long and tedious wrangle would be ended by the election of W. J. Deboe to ended by the election of W. J. Deboe to the United States Senate. All during the morning there were rumors to the effect that Senator Linney, of Louisville, who was one of the bolters in the Hunter race, would not be present, and that Repre-sentative Leiberth, of Newport, also would be missing, both without pairs. This caused the Republicans great un-essiness. To add to this the Gold Demoeasiness. To add to this, the Gold Demo-crats held a caucus at noon, and decided assist the Silver Democrats in an effort to break a quorum.

When President Worthington took the chair, shortly after noon, there was a strong smell of fire, and great excitement for a time, but it was quelled by the prompt action of the officers of the House, who appointed a committee to as-certain if there was a confingration in progress in the State House. No fire could be found, except some paper burn-ing in a corner, and the excitement subsided. Governor Bradley appeared on the floor, with Congressman Colson and others of his friends, and this fact in itself caused some uneasiness among the Deboe men, as it was the first time the Governor has been on the floor since the extra session convened. Just before rollcall Representative Lieberth appeared, but Senator Linney declined to answer. One sound-money Democrat replied, but this was offset by Leiberth, who was present and declined to answer to his name. The roll-call showed 68 present-necessary to a quorum, 70. A call for the absentces was demanded, and the Deboe men crowded about Linney and Leiberth, in an endeavor to control them. Linney finally answered, but Leiberth left the room, leaving only 69 present.

Senator Bronston (Democrat), moved an adjournment, but President Worthingoverruled him, and said that a ballot must be taken, quorum or no quorum. When Senator Linney's name was reached, he answered that he was paired with Senator Henry L. Martin, paired with Senator Henry L. Martin, who has been urged as the compromise candidate of the Democrats. Only sixty-six voted, which left Deboe four short of an election, and a call of the abzentees was demanded. This was productive of nothing to Deboe's benefit, and the ballot as finally announced stood: Deboe. 66-no quorum and no election.

There was a scene of the wildest ex-citement when it finally became known that Deboe had been knifed, and the galleries, and even the members of the Legislature, lost their dignity for a moment. An adjournment was moved and carried, but there was the deepest feeling manifest on all sides. In the corridor, Governor Bradley found Mr. Leiberth, whom he implored to vote for the nominee. Mr. Leiberth;

After the joint session, Senator Linney who voted to make a quorum, but who claimed he was paired with Senator Martin, said that he honestly believed that Deboe would be elected Monday. He would not say what he would do.

HIS ABSENCE ALARMING, Corporations with Which He Had to

Do in Difficulties. NEW BEDFORD, MASS., April 24 .-Much alarm is felt here over the continued absence from this city of William D. Howland, treasurer of the New Bedford manufacturing corporation, and president of the Howland cotton-mills, president of the Howand cotton-mins, all of which, as announced last night, are in financial difficulties, owing principally to the placing of the Bennett and Columbia corporations in the hands of receivers, and the revelation of irregularities in the accounts of the latter mills. At a meeting of the directors of the Howand and New Bedford companies was decided to make a full yesterday, it was decided to make a full examination of the accounts, in order

ery. His family stated to all callers at his house that they did not know where Mr. Howland was. Garry Pierce, a bookkeeper for the corporation of which Mr. Howland was treasurer, says that the latter reported to him his failure to raise money to avert the troubles, and had threatened to drown himself.
